

Re: sr1: CDROM not ready ???

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Mailing-Lists/Debian/2004-01/4929.html>

From: Alphonse Ogulla (ogulla_at_uonbi.ac.ke)

Date: 01/28/04

Date: Wed, 28 Jan 2004 08:48:23 -0300 (EAT)

To: <debian-user@lists.debian.org>

> On Tue, 2004-01-27 at 15:06, Michael D Schleif wrote:
>> OK, it can be nice to have devices _know_ when they are ready to be >> used ;>
>>
>> However, enough is enough:
>>
>> Jan 27 10:02:09 bragi kernel: sr1: CDROM not ready. Make sure >> there is > a disc in the drive.
>> Jan 27 10:02:40 bragi last message repeated 31 times
>> Jan 27 10:03:41 bragi last message repeated 61 times
>> Jan 27 10:04:42 bragi last message repeated 61 times
>>
>> I know what /dev/sr1 is, and I often play audio CD's in that drive.
>> Sometimes, that drive is empty, and that is the way it should be.
>>
>> How can I figure out what process is pummeling syslog with this >> useless information?
>>
>> What do you think?
>
> Install the lsof package if you don't have it.
>
> Try: lsof /dev/sr1
>
> It should give you a clue as to what is opening the device, you may > have to run it as lsof -r /dev/sr1 over a minute or more if the process > only opens /dev/sr1 every now and then. It looks to be something > checking once a minute (61 log messages over 61 minutes) Are you > running > something like nautilus?

I resolved an identical problem recently. Check out this post from the archives. <http://lists.debian.org/debian-user/2004/debian-user-200401/msg05812.html>

I hope this helps

Re: sr1: CDROM not ready ???

Debian-User: Re: sr1: CDRom not ready ???

--

Alphonse Ogulla
Nairobi, Kenya

University of Nairobi Mail Services
"You can't afford to stay offline"
<http://mail.uonbi.ac.ke/>

--

To UNSUBSCRIBE, email to debian-user-request@lists.debian.org with a subject of "unsubscribe". Trouble? Contact listmaster@lists.debian.org