Certain web pages cause my screen to "go funny" with horizontal lines for a few seconds, then leave it looking ugly until I log out of GDM and back in again. This happens only with Firefox and Mozilla; I can look at the same pages in Konqueror and Galleon. It used to happen occasionally on slashdot.org (usually on Apple-related pages, I think) but not www.theregister.co.uk is giving me trouble. I use XFCE4 but I've had the same problem in GNOME.

Here's a screenshot of the after-effects.

Below is some information I think might be relevant. Please ask for anything else that might help.

Thanks,
Adam
