

Debian-User: Re: eth0 does not start during boot, but can be started manually

Re: eth0 does not start during boot, but can be started manually

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Mailing-Lists/Debian/2005-09/4063.html>

From: richard (recw_at_pobox.com)

Date: 09/30/05

Date: 29 Sep 2005 17:15:02 -0700

To: debian-user@lists.debian.org

Dear Steven,

Thanks! It sounds plausible. Can you give me a bit more detail (or a reference) on how to do that, please? As I recall from reading, the number-order in a particular run level will determine the event ordering, but in what level should networking start, and where do I find the links/scripts?

Do you have any idea what might have caused this? It used to work after all.

Richard

--

To UNSUBSCRIBE, email to debian-user-REQUEST@lists.debian.org with a subject of "unsubscribe". Trouble? Contact listmaster@lists.debian.org