

pygopherd security

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Mailing-Lists/Debian/2006-02/msg03205.html>

- From: Erwin Hedwig <eh@xxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: 27 Feb 2006 15:53:41 -0000
-

I'm going to set up pygopherd on my home computer just for fun. After I get it working I'd like to make it available for my friends to view, but my ISP's conditions state that any servers have to be password protected, not open to the general public.

Does pygopherd have anything like .htaccess or another authentication scheme I can use?

Is pygopherd very secure (safe to run on my main computer)?

Thanks.

--

To UNSUBSCRIBE, email to debian-user-REQUEST@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx with a subject of "unsubscribe". Trouble? Contact listmaster@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx