Then perhaps you Americans should take a look at how we British are solving a similar problem...

<http://www.ofsted.gov.uk/>

Instead of complaining about "how it doesn't work" and threatening to scrap it, we *fixed* the problem...

The problem appears to be that everybody must pass High School. Even if they don't. Perhaps if there was a real chance of little Johnny *failing*, the standards would rise...

Please note: What you Americans call public schools, we call state schools... our Public Schools are private...
