

RE: [ML ISSUE] reply-to field ?

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Mailing-Lists/Debian/2007-03/msg05332.html>

- From: "Seth Goodman" <sethg@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Fri, 30 Mar 2007 16:50:53 -0500
-

Ron Johnson wrote on Friday, March 30, 2007 4:42 PM -0500:

On 03/30/07 16:33, Seth Goodman wrote:

That's a large enough hurdle that I think it safe to say the horse has left the barn on this one a long time ago. Continuing to insist that things should have been different, long past the point where that is feasible, only makes us look foolish. In that, we have been successful.

By very similar reasoning, we should all dump Linux and go with the OS that has 95% usage.

Not at all. Unix predated Windows and has had a large following all along. This is different from the preferred usage of mailing list trace headers, which only a small number of implementations ever took seriously.

--
Seth Goodman

--
To UNSUBSCRIBE, email to debian-user-REQUEST@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx with a subject of "unsubscribe". Trouble? Contact listmaster@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx