Agreed it is also meant for desktop. But i think dist. shud introduce a special and standard GUI which match windows's so that migration would be less painful for dumbs like me. KDE Gnome are too confusing for newbies. To kick off win u need to make interface as user friendly as theirs.

BTW wats common with linux geeks is that u cud hardly find 2 of them agreeing on any issue. One says KDE is better other loves Gnome. One says Fedora is nice and other swears by Mandrake.

I was all confused when deciding which dist and what interface to use. So now i use Gnome and KDE programmes!
