My system is experimental, a Linux learning box. It's got so many problems at this point that I want to just start over. What can I save? I know there's a lot of configuration stuff in my home folder. Should I back up all those files – will I be reintroducing problems by trying to apply them? Are there other files/folders I should back up? Any suggestions and comments would be appreciated. I'm thinking of things like my Kmail files and such – most of the stuff I just want to rebuild from scratch.
