Yeah, this isn't a Fedora package, however I know many Fedora users are using the older version of this package so I figure it would be appropriate to announce here. You can optionally configure yum to point to the repository for auto-upgrade in the future.

Macromedia Flash Player Update Notification
CVE-2005-2628

Name : flash-plugin

Version : 7.0.61

Release : 1

Summary : Flash Player for x86 Linux

Description :

Macromedia Flash Plugin 7.0.61

Update Information:

Updated Macromedia Flash Player packages that fix a security issue are now available.

This update has been rated as having critical security impact by the Red Hat Security Response Team.

The flash-plugin package contains a Mozilla-compatible Macromedia Flash Player browser plug-in.

A buffer overflow bug was discovered in the Macromedia Flash Player. It may be possible to execute arbitrary code on a victim's machine if the victim opens a malicious Macromedia Flash file. The Common Vulnerabilities and Exposures project assigned the name CVE-2005-2628 to this issue.
