I recently had problems with a FC6 --> F7 upgrade in which I explicitly said 'do not install a boot loader' and it STILL screwed up my grub. I don't know if it was just in the situation with a windows load as a dual boot, because this laptop has that configuration at the moment. I am wondering if Karl is running into the same issue that I was running into. In my case I already had grub and did not want mine messed with.

I think the first CD I made will allow me to reinstall grub anywhere. I will try it going to my second hard drive which has none now.
