

Re: gnome places "gtk bookmarks" open thunar

Re: gnome places "gtk bookmarks" open thunar

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Mailing-Lists/GNOME/2007-07/msg00036.html>

- From: Sven Arvidsson <sa@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 18 Jul 2007 15:58:05 +0200
-

On Mon, 2007-07-16 at 17:12 +0100, Frank Wilson wrote:

I got a little "seduced" by xfce4 and decided to install it the other day (putting on flame-proof suit! :S). Now when I use gnome and I try to open a gtk-bookmark from the places menu it opens thunar. The same thing happens with any hal mounted volume. I've decided I don't like thunar and would much rather use gnautilus :) . Does anyone know how to get my gtk-bookmarks to open in gnautilus?

Note: My "home folder" still opens in gnautilus as does "network services" and "computer". Maybe there is some significance in this!

Try selecting Properties for a directory and check if Open With is set to thunar.

—

Cheers,
Sven Arvidsson
<http://www.whiz.se>
PGP Key ID 760BDD22

Attachment: signature.asc

Description: This is a digitally signed message part

gnome-list mailing list
gnome-list@xxxxxxxx
<http://mail.gnome.org/mailman/listinfo/gnome-list>