Login to desktop using "failsafe session from login screen.
This should bring up a terminal window on screen.

I'm not sure what you mean by 'failsafe' session so I logged in to a terminal (type 3) from boot and executed the command below.

Under login screen, you will be able to see a "Session" option. Select "failsafe" from the same.

The output to log was as follows:

(gnome-session:2995): Gtk-WARNING : cannot open display:

From type 3/init mode 3 run "xinit" command. This should bring up a terminal window on screen.

$ xinit

Run gnome as shown below from terminal shown on screen, and provide any message printed

/usr/bin/dbus-launch --exit-with-session gnome-session 2>&1
| tee log

re-run this command, and let me know of the output.

Check of ~/.xsession-errors file for information.

I checked that and it had heaps of errors but didn't mean much to me.

I can do it again and attach the contents for you if that will help.

pastebin, or zip and mail me.
