

RE: Gnome 2.22 & FreeBSD 7 mouse configuration

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Mailing-Lists/GNOME/2008-04/msg00032.html>

- From: Sven Arvidsson <sa@xxxxxxx>
 - Date: Fri, 11 Apr 2008 17:04:36 +0200
-

On Thu, 2008-04-10 at 21:42 -0300, Pitre, Ian (DPS/MSP) wrote:

Thank you for the info. That website is exactly where I was last night and it describes xf86config and XF86Setup as the two files used for the configuration. Although I have the same directory structure as described in the manual I do not have those two files.

I'm soooo lost right now :)

Hi,

I think the documentation you're looking at is outdated, isn't FreeBSD using Xorg instead of XFree86?

Try following these instructions instead,
<http://www.freebsd.org/doc/en/books/handbook/x-config.html>

Also, if you have a mouse in the console, you're probably using gpm. I think you need to either configure X to use gpm, or deactivate it?

—
Cheers,
Sven Arvidsson
<http://www.whiz.se>
PGP Key ID 760BDD22

Attachment: signature.asc
Description: This is a digitally signed message part gnome-list mailing list

gnome-list@xxxxxxx
<http://mail.gnome.org/mailman/listinfo/gnome-list>