

RE: using sysstat

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Mailing-Lists/RedHat/2007-06/msg00227.html>

- From: "Caricofe, Bradley" <bcaricofe@xxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Tue, 26 Jun 2007 17:14:29 -0400
-

You're mistakenly assuming that "sysstat" is the name of the binary.

Thanks guys, I actually tried iostat and the other commands and received the same "command not found" message. However I just ran an up2date on sysstat and now it's working. Strange because grepping up2date showed it already there before I updated it. Anyways...thanks much!

– Brad

—

redhat-list mailing list

unsubscribe <mailto:redhat-list-request@xxxxxxxxxxxx?subject=unsubscribe>
<https://www.redhat.com/mailman/listinfo/redhat-list>