As much as I love SuSE, I would be wary that ANY company would take over the world. SuSE is my favorite linux distribution, right up there with Debian. If I could, I would have bought stock in it but it wasn't publicly traded (at the time), contrarily to Red Hat, which was listed on the stock exchanges. I'm wary of a trait of the human psyche: the tendency to put all his/her eggs in the same basket and to play it safe. After all, that's how monopolies are born. Even though I love KDE, I still would fund Gnome just to keep an alternative going.
