I know that this is the opposite of 'free', but linspire offers a dvd player for $10 on their site. It is a rip-off, but at least it is available. -Steven

It is $10 only for those people who pay $50 a year for Linspire's "Clink 'N Run" Gold service. Otherwise it is $40.

Good luck getting it to run on a non-Debian distribution.

I wasn't talking about getting THAT dvd player on SuSE, I just mean the idea that even though it is not included, and you might have to pay a little, it is still available to the average user from the distributor.

Yeah, that would be nice.

Here's the Linspire version:

I don't see why someone hasn't decided on this as a niche business model for the *nix community.

/me runs off with an idea...
