

Re: [opensuse] Beagle Configuration

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Mailing-Lists/SuSE/2007-03/msg03194.html>

- From: Patrick Shanahan <ptilopteri@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Thu, 29 Mar 2007 15:26:05 -0400
-

* Joe Shaw <joe@xxxxxxxx> [03-29-07 14:21]:
[...]

Broadly, it seems that people basically fall into two camps:

This is incorrect. There exists three groups.

(a) People who have no need or desire for Beagle.

[...]

(b) People who experience performance problems when running Beagle.

[...]

(c) Those who use Beagle and like it and experience no noticeable system degradation.

The only problem I see with Beagle is the amount of disk space required for the indexes. 1.7G on my box, but I have a lot of disk space and the cost is nothing like what my first 32MB hard drive was. (I have two 8GB camera chips that combined cost less....)

--
Patrick Shanahan Registered Linux User #207535
<http://wahoo.no-ip.org> @ <http://counter.li.org>
HOG # US1244711 Photo Album: <http://wahoo.no-ip.org/gallery2>
OpenSUSE Linux <http://en.opensuse.org/>

--
To unsubscribe, e-mail: opensuse+unsubscribe@xxxxxxxx
For additional commands, e-mail: opensuse+help@xxxxxxxx