

Re: Complete newby and SuSE9.2

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/alt.os.linux.suse/2004-11/1526.html>

From: Zane Vandiver (zvan_at_sbcglobal.net)

Date: 11/10/04

Date: Wed, 10 Nov 2004 18:29:47 GMT

Steve,

The error message you are getting is related to a package called kdatabase3-extra. Make sure you have that installed. I had the same problem on my 9.1 install when I upgraded KDE to 3.3.1.

I don't think this is related to your network problem. Follow AC's advice and check the network settings with YAST.

Zane

Steve Long wrote:

- > Hi guys, after years of getting frustrated with my Windows network (3
- > wired, 3 wireless users) 8-port DLS Router/hub/DHCP server and a networked
- > Laserjet Printer I decided that I was going to play with Linux. I know
- > nothing about Linux except that it is basically Unix (I know nothing about
- > Unix either!). So having seen a SuSE system running in the US I bought
- > SuSE 9.2 and installed it.
- >
- > When I fire the system up into the KDE3.3 desktop I get an error message
- > entitled "Error KDesktop" with the following text "Could not start process
- > Unable to create io-slave: Klauncher says: Unknown protocol 'devices'."
- >
- > I suspect this has some bearing on the fact that the computer (Pentium 3
- > 256kbyte RAM 40 GByte disk) won't join my existing network. Can someone
- > give me some clues as to a) what is failing on startup, and b) where I
- > look to set up the network parameters.
- >
- > Opinion so far: KDE standard desktop background is prettier than Win XP's
- > standard (you can tell I haven't got far with the system yet, can't you?)
- >
- > Steve