

Re: Why is my DSL for friggin' slow on Linux 9.1?

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/alt.os.linux.suse/2005-03/0183.html>

---

From: hachiroku (levin_at_ae86.gts)

Date: 03/02/05

Date: Wed, 02 Mar 2005 01:18:56 GMT

On Mon, 28 Feb 2005 23:50:24 -0600, mjt wrote:

> hachiroku <levin@ae86.gts> wrote:

>

>> On Sun, 27 Feb 2005 19:58:54 +0000, hachiroku wrote:

>>

>>> ?

>>

>> I tried a few things mentioned here, no avail.

>>

>> Here's another clue: when I start Linux, right off the bat it's slow and >> gets slower. I mean SLOOOOOOW!!! I reboot, switch to XP, runs like a >> champ; reboot back to Linux and it runs as fast as it ever did before...

>

> ... either something up with the NIC or maybe your > bios is PNP ??????

Here's another hint: it hangs for a while with a message 'resolving host...' at the bottom of the browser.

BTW, I want to thank all who have held my hand through this. I am a network technician, but a Linux n00b, so I am behind the learning curve. Thanks!