

Re: Latest YOU update, Firefox broken?

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/alt.os.linux.suse/2005-04/3450.html>

From: David Wright (david_c_wright_at_hotmail.com)

Date: 04/28/05

Date: Thu, 28 Apr 2005 10:29:48 +0200

Preston Crawford wrote:

> On 2005-04-28, Bob James <bob.james@charter.net> wrote:
>> Preston Crawford wrote:
>>
>>> Anyone else behavior? It's not finding my bookmarks. The style looks >>> different. It basically looks like it isn't finding my preference files.
>>> The version is 1.0.3-1.1. This update came through today. Anyone know >>> what's going on?
>>
>> Good question. I got exactly the same behavior.
>>
>> As a fix, I created a new profile, and saw that the bookmark folders are >> named differently. However, I couldn't just rename the folders in the old >> profile to get a fix. I'm currently using the new profile, having >> imported the bookmarks from the old one. However, there are other >> problems...
>>
>> The biggest one revolves around being unable to use or update the themes >> and extensions. There are still some tweaks I can do, but you're right...
>> this is frustrating.
>
> Indeed. There are rumblings that it's a Firefox problem, but the bigger > issue then is why SuSE is releasing this garbage. I pay money for SuSE so > they'll test this stuff. If they're not going to bother testing it, I have > no reason to choose SuSE over Fedora, Gentoo or some other distribution.
>
> Preston

The update to 1.0.3 was for security reasons, it closed some vulnerabilities which were classed as critical. Personally I would rather that maybe the themes don't work properly, but the vulnerabilities are gone...

BTW, I've upgraded 8 machines to 1.0.3 (Linux 7, Windows 1) and haven't seen the problem with the disappearing bookmarks on any of them...

Dave