I agree. I have been asking for the same over and over again. Have you let SUSE know your frustration?

I'm not frustrated, just annoyed at the silliness of creating a problem where none existed before, and the solution has always been to have just left things as they were. Your favorite line, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it," applies here, in spades.

Please let SUSE now. If nobody or only a few tell them, they might think there is no real problem or the problem is not large enough to repair.

As you may note, I don't have any problem telling anyone anything. ;-)

Where would be the most appropriate place to post such a message?
