

Re: Alternative to rar split files?

---

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/alt.os.linux.suse/2007-11/msg00090.html>

---

- From: Baron <baron.nospam@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Sat, 03 Nov 2007 23:01:08 +0000
-

Luca wrote:

ChairmanOfTheBored wrote:

On Wed, 31 Oct 2007 17:58:26 GMT, jonny <jj@xxxxx> wrote:

I'm not sure if it's crippled, nag or what after the 40days. I believe Unrar is freeware but of course you can't create rar files.

No. I think in Linux, it simply remains operational, and the user is on his or her honor to pay. No nags... no concatenation...

I'll bet it keeps working just fine. Updates, etc. no problem.

unrar isn't the issue here. it's rar that puts me out. I mean, even WinRar keeps working in all directions after the trial period has expired. You get a nagbox and that's it. But ironically, on Linux, command line rar basically just tells you "fuck you, pay me." I don't get it...

Luca

I don't get that ! I use rar/unrar without any nagboxes or pay messages.

—

Best Regards:

Baron.

.