

Re: The Linux Revolution: What Happened?

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.os.linux.misc/2005-08/0113.html>

From: Alan Connor (zzzzzz_at_xxx.invalid)

Date: 08/02/05

Date: Tue, 02 Aug 2005 12:43:04 GMT

On comp.os.linux.misc, in <MOwHe.8094$Uk3.4857@newsread1.news.pas.earthlink.net>, "Alan Connor" wrote:

>

>

> On comp.os.linux.misc, in <8i4He.85$I04.44@newsread2.news.pas.earthlink.net>, "Alan Connor" wrote:

>>

>

><snip>

>

> "Tommy"

>

> I did a search on your alias.

>

> According to google you have posted 16,400 times

> since Jan 1.

>

> That's genuine net abuse.

>

> Piss off. Your post, and any responses to it, go unread.

>

> On the Usenet, where you can choose any alias you want, you get > to live with the posting history of the one you choose.

>

> http://groups.google.com/advanced_group_search

>

>

> AC

"Jason"

I am not interested in what little dickless, motor-mouthed cowards who hide behind common first names has to say.

Your post and any responses to it go unread.

Why do I have to keep repeating this?

Why do all these obnoxious children playing with their mommy's computer think that everyone has to read whatever they post and cares what they think?

They bring new meaning to the word "clueless".

AC

--

People who post through google take and take and never give back. Ever seen one of them help anyone? If they are asking about anything but how to use a real newsreader, PLEASE DON'T HELP THEM. -----> news.software.readers