

Re: Slackware 9.1 ISOs

Source: <http://linux.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.os.linux.setup/2003-10/0191.html>

From: Michael C. (mcsuper5_at_usol.com)

Date: 10/04/03

Date: 4 Oct 2003 18:46:57 GMT

On Sat, 04 Oct 2003 17:13:48 +0100,

Mark Gary <mark@nospam.com> wrote:

>

>

> AIV wrote:

> > Mark Gary wrote:

> >

> >>

> >> Hi,

> >>

> >> just a quick question. I'm about to do a download of the slackware

> >> 9.1 iso files, but I dot want to do a download of stuff I don't need, > >> especially at 600MB a time. So which ISOs contain the installation, > >> and which ones contain the useful stuff, but not required straight away.

> >

> >

> > <http://www.slackware.com/> and read...

> >

> > To be a little more explicit (I am in good mood, today ;o), try getting > > the first and second CDs...

> > (gee, first two-CD install for Slackware :o)

> >

> > If you're in Europe, you might try

> > <ftp://dl.xs4all.nl/pub/mirror/slackware/slackware-9.1-iso-bittorrent/>

> >

> > Otherwise a mirror near you might do the job...

> >

> > Or you might try BitTorrent...

> >

> > AND, of course, you must buy the official distro from Slackware:

> > <http://store.slackware.com/cgi-bin/store/slack9.1>

> >

> > Have a nice day.

> >

>

> OK, thanks for that. I'll Just download the first two for now, and do > the others later. I was a little surprised there were 4 iso images, > when only one existed in 9.0. Slackware must have really pushed the > boat out for version.

>

Slack 9.0 was 4 disks, I only ordered disk 1 from cheapbytes, and that was sufficient. I believe 1 disk is source, 1 is zipslack and I don't recall the other.

I'd imagine 9.1 is essentially the same.

Michael C.

--

mcsuper5@usol.com <http://mcsuper5.freeshell.org/>
Registered Linux User #303915 <http://counter.li.org/>